Carnival time

WALLY THE Clown and Snoopy entertained children at the annual Captain Cooper School Carnival held at the school in Big Sur. The event, which featured musical entertainment from the Carmel High School Jazz Band and El Mariachi Mixtlan, arts and crafts and a variety of games, grossed more than $9,000. Funds will be used to build a new multi-purpose room as well as various classroom projects. (Paula Walling photo.)

Solution to Highway 1 is needed, but sides split on what that is

By DAVID LELAND

IF NOTHING else, the proposed $34 million Hatton Canyon Freeway project provides continued fodder for lively debate in Carmel.

The almost 40-year-old issue still is far from resolved, with traffic on Highway 1 beginning to gridlock as the summer months and increased tourist traffic takes hold.

'The freeway could be completed in less time than would be required just to complete the paperwork to get widening of Highway 1 ready for construction.'

— Lois Starnes
— Citizens for Hatton Canyon

Most area residents agree that some solution is needed to attain free-flowing traffic along Highway 1. But beyond that, the two warring camps remain at odds on how such a solution should be sought.

Caltrans has provided plans for a freeway travelling through Hatton Canyon, with complicated interchanges at Carpenter Street and Carmel Valley Road and a new bridge at Carmel River.

Others believe that simply widening the existing Highway 1 to four lanes is all that is needed to provide relief for the coming years.

While public sentiment has moved toward widening Highway 1, Caltrans supporters received a boost this week when a newly organized group, Citizens for Hatton Canyon, came forward asking for donations to help initiate a freeway in the canyon.

"The Citizens for Hatton Canyon organization is promoting a program to set the record straight," said spokeswoman Lois Starnes. "The freeway in the canyon will not be a monstrosity; it will be a scenic road. The vegetation that is already there will only be disturbed in the area of the lanes of traffic."

Starnes, who lives on Ocean Avenue and Highway 1, said widening Highway 1 would be a lengthy process during which time federal and state funding could be lost.

"The freeway could be completed in less time than would be required just to complete the paperwork to get widening of Highway 1 ready for construction," she said.

She also pointed out new figures from David Murray, Caltrans regional transportation planner, who said in a letter to 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck, that widening will only provide relief for a "maximum of five to six years before traffic congestion would return to existing conditions."

At a Monterey County Transportation Commission meeting held earlier this spring, Murray said that traffic congestion would be alleviated for 18 years with widening of the existing highway. (Shipnuck is chairwoman of the commission.)

In a copy of a separate letter received by The Carmel Pine Cone Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director, questioned 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas' new stance supporting the widening of the existing freeway.

"I'm sorry that you felt it necessary to change your position prior to the release of the final EIS (slated for August)," Pollock wrote. "Recent studies show that even a freeway on the existing alignment would not provide the minimum level of service specified by the Monterey County Regional Transportation Plan...Only the Hatton Canyon freeway, in conjunction with the existing highway, would provide that service."

Council tables moratorium on demolitions, remodels

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council Tuesday night tabled a moratorium on demolitions and "substantial remodels," then did some major remodeling of its own on a draft R-1 district ordinance, proposing to reduce allowed building coverage from 45 percent to 40 percent.

The council moved the urgency ordinance that would have imposed the moratorium from the last item on the agenda to the first item to accomodate the overflow crowd, many who had to wait outside on the stairs. The crowd came mainly to protest the proposal.

Councilmember Ken White had the ordinance placed on the agenda late last week after the agenda had been published in The Carmel Pine Cone but before the 72-hour deadline.

City clerk Jeanne Brehmer explained, however, that according to state law an urgency ordinance does not require the same noticing as other ordinances.

But White said that the ordinance had been in the works for two weeks, but was completed on Tuesday last week. The city administrator put it through the city attorney's office which pushed it beyond the Wednesday agenda publication deadline.

"I thought we were going to get it in time for the agenda," White said. "I see now that I should have laid more groundwork."

That, White said, should have included a call the planning commission chairperson, who told the council she first learned of it on Monday before the meeting.

White said he proposed the ordinance because of the backup in the planning department due to a 200 percent increase in applications over last year, the resignation of two planning commissioners. In addition, the department has also lost one planner, another is working on a separate project, and the department is busy on a parking project report. There has also been a 360-percent increase in demolition requests since two years ago. There have been 15 requests in the year to date as opposed to 6 for the entire year in 1988 and 17 in 1989.

"To my perception, things get kind of rushed because of the backup," White added. "I guess I perceived something that no one else has perceived."

He added that he was getting mixed signals from the staff about the backlog.

At the meeting, planning director Diane White said that the department had 29 pending design review applications and that some proposals in the general plan amendments and ordinance on the council's agenda would help with the problems.

Planning Commission Chairperson Carla Ramsey told the council that she did not feel the commission was rushing things in order to catch up with the backlog. She added that she was certain that if the commissioners needed to meet more often, they would be willing to do so.

"Who is pleading for help? Who is screaming? Has the planning department indicated they need immediate relief?" asked councilmember Bob Fischer.

"I think it is the duty of the council to keep up with these things," White responded.

"I guess what I am hearing is that is really screaming for relief," Fischer said.

Councilmember Jim Wright said he was concerned that the staff and commission felt pressured to get applications through, but Ramsey's comment alleviated that concern. He was also concerned that some of the new R-1 guidelines the council and commission have been discussing were not in effect, but because some were on the agenda for that night, that concern was also alleviated.

Councilmember Barbara Brooks said she believed the increase in the number of applications was a concern, but that it "would have been much better if we had time to think about it."

Speakers from the audience called the proposed ordinance everything from a "ruse" to stating there was an ulterior motive for its inception.

"I recently purchased a lot here in Carmel," said one man from Orinda. "I found in Orinda a lot of people on the day they move in they are all for progress and change. The day after they move in, they want to build a wall to keep others out."

Habitual offenders will get cars towed away

IF YOU go back to your parked car in Carmel and it's gone, think to yourself: Do I have many delinquent traffic tickets?

Carmel Police Capt. Don Fuselier explained that the city is going to soon begin towing the cars of habitual offenders — people with about five or more delinquent parking tickets.

The city began putting warnings on the car windshields of habitual offenders last month.

The letter tells the recipient how many parking tickets he or she has deliquent, how much they owe and how to pay it, Fuselier said.

There are 373 habitual offenders on the police list, he added, and they owe the city a total of $128,933.50.

Fuselier said the city will not use the controversial "boot" that disables cars where they are parked with the use of a device that locks onto their tires. The police department will check with the company the city contracts with to do the paperwork on parking tickets before the car is towed away.

"Before we tow anybody, we are going to make certain that they have outstanding tickets," he said.

Some people, with fines and penalties on delinquent tickets owe "in excess of $1,000."

Fuselier added that did not know where exactly the towed cars would be stored.

"People who come back and find that their car is gone should call us. It might be stolen or, if they have many outstanding tickets, it might be towed," he said.

Practical solution

Dear Editor:

For a period of several years I've been a member of the Hatton Canyon Freeway Committee (recently redesignated "Citizens for Hatton Canyon"). We are convinced that the only practical solution to the mushrooming traffic congestion on Highway 1 (from Carpenter to Rio Road), is to implement the long delayed 34-year-old Hatton Canyon plan.

This will provide a limited speed (50 mph), divided (two lanes each direction), highway apropriately landscaped with native plants. Many of the Monterey pines and vegetation in the canyon would be preserved.

Our committee interviewed and obtained signatures from over 6,000 residents of the Carmel and Carmel Valley area in favor of building the Hatton Canyon bypass. This substantial endorsement was instrumental in convincing the Coastal Commission as well as a majority of the Monterey County Supervisors.

Caltrans, our expert highway engineering agency, has testified repeatedly that the alternative (widening Highway 1), would be only a temporary solution. Furthermore, many longtime residents along Highway 1 would be forced to move.

Construction of the Hatton Canyon bypass would permit Highway 1 from Carpenter to Rio Road to return to its former use as a county road primarily for local residents. It would save numerous mature Monterey pines lining both sides of Highway 1. It would improve the mobility of fire engines, ambulances, and other emergency vehicles, particularly during commuter hours.

Finally, it would bring a reduction in traffic noise and lessening of pollution for the many long-suffering residents living adjacent to Highway 1.

Valuable knowledge

Dear editor:

On Wednesday, May 23 and Thursday, May 24, the Monterey County Fire Prevention Officers Association sponsored a free two-hour seminar on fire prevention and how to protect your home in a wildland/urban interface area. The seminar was presented by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Fire Department Bureau of Fire Prevention and the Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross.

A member of my family attended the seminar Thursday night because we feel that fire protection is a very important issue in our community in view of the lack of substantial rainfall and wildland areas. He was the only person in attendance that evening. His presence on Thursday made a total of nine people that attended the four separate seminars given on Wednesday and Thursday at Sunset Center.

I trust we have not forgotten the devastation that fire caused in Pebble Beach three short years ago. Fire knows no boundaries and the Carmel area is not exempt from the destruction a wildfire can cause. Learning how to prevent fire as well as protect your home is a valuable bit of knowledge we can all little afford to miss.

We all cherish our homes and families as well as the magnificence of Carmel-by-the-Sea. It would be a tragic to have any of these things taken from us as result of a wildfire.

There was a great deal of effort put forth by the Carmel Fire Department and Carmel Red Cross to pass this valuable information along to the community. I sincerely hope that when the opportunity again arises to attend such a seminar, that we do so out of the desire to protect and preserve our homes and community, and not because we have been marred by tragedy.

Debt of gratitude

Dear Editor:

With the resignation of Fred Keeble as a member of the Carmel Planning Commission, Carmel and its surrounding area have lost the services of one of the most outstanding and dedicated public servants.

Mr. Keeble served his community for nearly a quarter of a century helping the area develop in a sane and orderly manner. He was protecting the environment when the word was not a part everybody's vocabulary. He helped establish sensible design control in the commercial zone of Carmel when the pubic had no interest in esthetic results. He did all of that without fanfare or political ambition.

All of us owe a great debt of gratitude to Mr. Keeble for his efforts on our behalf.

Higher authority

Dear Editor:

So we have water rationing.

A person would think that would be the end of the matter. But no, the various authorities who concern themselves with such matters are constantly telling us how to use our pittance. Low-flush toilets, half-flow shower heads, turn-off nozzles, and drip garden systems are a few of the ideas put forth by these drips.

If a fellow wants to wash down his driveway with his pittance that should be his business. He'll have less water to drink but at least that's better than those types who blow dirt off their driveways onto yours.

I have a lot of heavy-drinking friends. They wander into their favorite watering holes, thirsty, and parched, you'd think the first thing they would get, with that cocktail napkin and the nuts, served by a miniskirted female, would be a nice glass of ice cold water, no man, they have to ask for the water and wait for that precious fluid to put out the fire.

Also they tell you when to water, at night, when the young are out on the town and the old are in bed asleep. Repair your leaks, who can afford a plumber. Take short showers, I'd rather have one good one once a week than seven lousy ones. Use a bucket when washing my car, Hell, my neighbor, who has two cars, hires a detailer who brings his OWN water.

No, if the authorities want to tell me how much water I can have, that's it!

Don't also be telling me how to use it. I have only one authority with that kind of power, my wife.

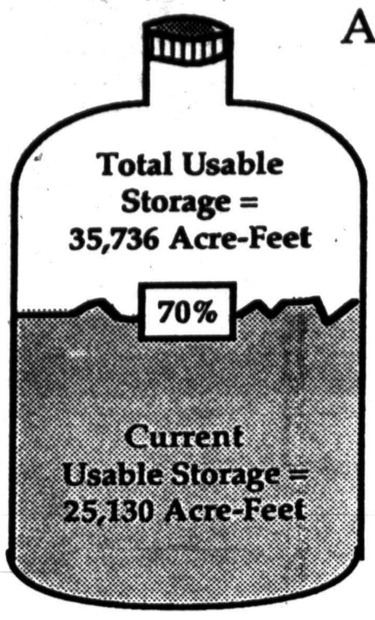
MONTEREY PENINSULA WATER STORAGE REPORT AS OF MAY 30, 1990



NOTES:

- A minimum of 33,200 acre-feet of usable storage is necessary to consider ending mandatory rationing in June.
- Usable storage on June 1, 1989 was 26,111 acre-feet.

REPORT FURNISHED BY THE MONTEREY PENINSULA WATER MANAGEMENT DISTRICT

No matter who replaces them, the planning commission will not quickly recover from the loss within a short period of time of three such valuable members as Olof Dahlstrand, Ed Hicks and Fred Keeble. Not only did the professional training of these men give them hard-to-come-by expertise, but each had worked in the planning trenches through many policy deliberations.

Both Fred Keeble and Olof Dahlstrand had served on prior planning commissions. The former was its distinguished chairman for many years and the latter went on to become a highly respected councilman. They had been off for quite a long time when Clint Eastwood tapped them to lend their talents to his administration. It is safe to say that their knowledge and experience kept the reconstituted planning commission on a steady course.

Ed Hicks was a member of the General Plan Review Committee who contributed enormously to both its broad outlines and its nuts and bolts. He helped guide it to final adoption and thus was well qualified to help administer it as a planning commissioner.

The purpose of this letter is not to defend Ed Hicks, other than to say that he is incapable of racial or any other kind of prejudice, except that he does not suffer fools gladly.

Rather the purpose is to point out that one does not become a competent planning commissioner just by willingness to serve. The combined years of architectural experience and service in the planning function represented by these three unselfish and unbiased citizens were invaluable community assets and this is the measure of our loss.

Jumping ship

Dear Editor:

It seems very clear that the alternatives to rerouting Highway 1 through Hatton Canyon are very few. Please, all of you, let the experts finish their work, publish their findings, and circulate the reams of material that apply so that we can all be properly informed and be in the only position that responsible people should have before making a decision on such an expensive and long-term project.

It would be a disaster to buy into a "simple" project only to find it leads to much more complicated efforts in order to make it work.

Sam Karas jumped ship before the Environmental Impact Statement is released, and shows his comtempt for all the years of expert studies.

'Company mom' moves on to greener pastures

ALICE DOESN'T work here anymore.

That would be Alice Estes, who for the past three years has greeted those calling or calling on The Carmel Pine Cone with her South Carolina drawl.

Estes, who describes herself as "the company mom," has left the newspaper for the greener pastures of San Jose and the arms of fiance Steve Grimm, owner of Precision Pools. The two plan to be married in August.

"This is kind of like a divorce with children involved," says Estes, 29. "I feel like I'm leaving my kids. But sometimes in life you have to give up something you love for something that is better."

She adds that, for the time being at least, she plans to "cruise around in a bathing suit cleaning swimming pools all day."

During her tenure with The Pine Cone, Estes says she has enjoyed the myriad of local residents she has met.

"I've made a lot of friends," she says. "Sometimes I think I know more people here than I know back home in Columbia, South Carolina."

Replacing Estes is Nan Pietrowski, 47, who has been an area resident since 1983.

An assistant director for the Cherry Foundation, for the past year Pietrowski has worked in Big Sur for Deetjen's Inn.

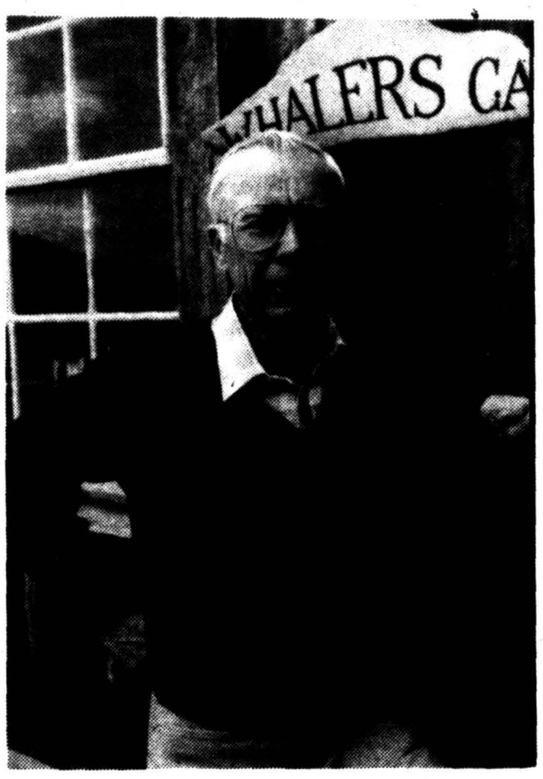
Point Lobos hides rich history most are unaware of

By NANCY HILLS

THERE IS a weathered cabin at Whalers Cove, Point Lobos, a simple structure, picturesque, eminently humble and steeped in more history than many a stately building.

Even the debris found in its original dirt floor can serve as a virtual guidebook of the past 140 years on Point Lobos.

After almost a century and a half, the hand-hewn redwood and pine plank cabin with whalebone vertebra floor joists looks in such good condition that it could be the envy of newer structures; an enduring gift from the past and of the immigrant Chinese fishing families that built it as a part of their settlement.



CARMEL RESIDENT and Point Lobos docent Kurt Loesch gathered artifacts and information on the history of the point for the museum in the cabin at Whalers Cove. (Nancy Hills photo.)

They have returned to the cabin, along with others who inhabitated the point, in another enduring manner. Now a museum, the displays in the structure track the history of the preserve from when it served as the location of a large Ohlone Indian village to its present use as a state park.

The hardy Chinese immigrants, who sailed in Chinese "junks" on the Japanese current to cross the Pacific Ocean, were only one part of a wave of human activity Point Lobos would play host to.

Their history was joined by whalers who gave the cove its name, quarrymen, land speculators, a Japanese marine biqlogist and his abalone divers, a restaurateur, dairies, filmmakers and almost any other activity found near the sea.

At Point Lobos these days the cabin and artifacts are all that is left of the Chinese and giant bones and giant pots are all that are left of the Portugese whalers. The Japanese marine biologist, his divers and abalone canning factory are also gone — as well as much of the abalone that brought them here.

The movie people still come and go, and while you can still "go down to the sea" at Whalers Cove, it is not to ships but to scuba dive. The equipment is more in line with underwater cameras rather than heavy harpoons and foul weather gear.

"People are amazed when they come to the cabin and see all the activity that used to be here," Whalers Cove docent Kurt Loesch said. "What this cabin has done is that it has given the visitor a chance to understand (Point Lobos) is more than a primeval preserve. Visitors think it was always like this. No way. This was a busy place."

That is a very important point to Loesch. The now almost sacred Point Lobos headlands once hummed with commercial activity; they were just another way to turn a dime. In those years it was crisscrossed with "roads all over the place," Loesch said, but in its current state, it is considered a haven of natural, untouched beauty.

"This is an example of what man can do if they stop development," he said.

A DEVELOPMENT is exactly what some had planned for the point.

One of the exhibits is a subdivision map of Point Lobos City, with neat little lots packed like sardines, side by side, turning the landscape into what looks suspiciously like early maps of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The Carmelo Land and Coal Co. started selling off parcels in the meadow facing Whalers Cove for homes in 1890, parcels that ranged from 25 to 50 feet.

Along came a successful businessman, A. M. Allan, who purchased the entire spit of land called Point Lobos as well as remaining unsold lots.

Allan was an environmentalist as well, so he began to buy back the lots that had already been sold when he could find the owners. It took 20 years. He died in 1930, and in 1933 his three daughters sold the property to the state for $631,000.

WHALERS COVE cabin has the most complete ethnic coverage on display of any exhibit on the peninsula, according to docent Kurt Loesch (in doorway.) (Nancy Hills photo.)

Though his action and his daughters' sale made it possible for the land to become a state park, Allan also had commercial activities at Point Lobos. But his tale is just one of many.

When the Chinese arrived around 1851, they might have found a few Ohlone Indians living there and a quiet cove with a bountiful sea harvest. The new immigrants built about 14 cabins and began fishing and gleaning the waters around Point Lobos. They made buttons and other domestic instruments from abalone shells.

In the following years, they shared the scenic, but no longer quiet, location with a rock and sand quarry directly across the cove. The rock and sand was shipped to San Francisco Bay area for glassmaking and granite for the construction of the Mare Island Naval Shipyard.

About 1862, the whalers arrived. Though called the Carmel Whaling Co., the men who worked the ships were actually from the Azores, Loesch said.

They towed the whales into the cove where they flensed the huge mammals then renderd the blubber down in huge iron kettles to make oil for lamps.

Loesch pointed to a painting in the exhibit done on whalebone vertebra by one of the whalers.

"They would make things like this for the tourists — there were tourists here in those days too, you know," he said.

In 1880s, the Chinese left for other parts of the peninsula and the whaling industry began to fall on hard times with the advent of kerosene lamps. The whalers returned in 1897 in a joint project with a Japanese group in the Japanese Whaling Co.

In the meantime, there was a short and futile flurry of gold fever, then another type of prospecting arrived. The Carmelo Land and Coal Co. not only divided the point into lots for development, but dug for coal at Malpaso Creek. The company shipped the coal out from Coal Shute Point, directly across from the cabin.

One of Allan's commercial projects at the point was a joint venture with the Japanese.

n 1896, Japanese marine biologist Gennosuke Kodani came to find abalone, a delicacy in Japan, and established a abalone canning industry. The abalone was shipped back to Japan and the operation continued until shortly before World War II.

One picture in the cabin's museum shows abalone drying beds as far as the eye can see, covered with what must be thousands of abalone.

A picture at the museum shows Kodani's divers in the thin shorts and goggles they had used in Japan. Here they found the waters much too cold for such scant clothing and switched to heavy deep sea diving suits.

Kodani's children and grandchildren still live in the area, Loesch said, and he contacted them during his search for artifacts and information about the point.

In 1918, abalone brought another entrepreneur to the cabin — "Pop Ernest" Doelter, who made abalone steak a gourmet treat for Americans. Before Doelter, Americans looked upon the dried abalone the Chinese and Japanese ate as a dubious delicacy. For the American palate, Doelter "invented" the abalone steak.

For two years, Doelter used the cabin to start his future enterprise and it is probably the birthplace of the American-style abalone steak.

"He was really a character," Loesch added.

Standing 6-foot-3 or 4 inches tall and weighing 300 pounds and sporting a fez, he was a noticeable personage who served up

Man who helped shape Carmel dies

A MAN who literally helped shape Carmel, Clayton Neill, died on Saturday, June 2 at his home in Carmel at the age of 92 years.

Neill served as Carmel's city engineer for more than 30 years. He lived in the city 50 years, where he founded Neill Engineers in 1944 and with his wife, Dorothy, opened Village Hardware in 1943. The store closed in 1977.

His son, Clayton Neill, Jr. is the current city engineer.

Neill Sr. was involved in the community serving on such boards as a Harrison Memorial Library Board trustee two or three times.

"I think he was really proud of his involvement with the library," son Clayton Neill Jr. said.

He had also served as a district engineer for the Monterey Peninsula Airport, work of which he was also proud, Neill Jr. said, and on the Carmel Sanitary District board.

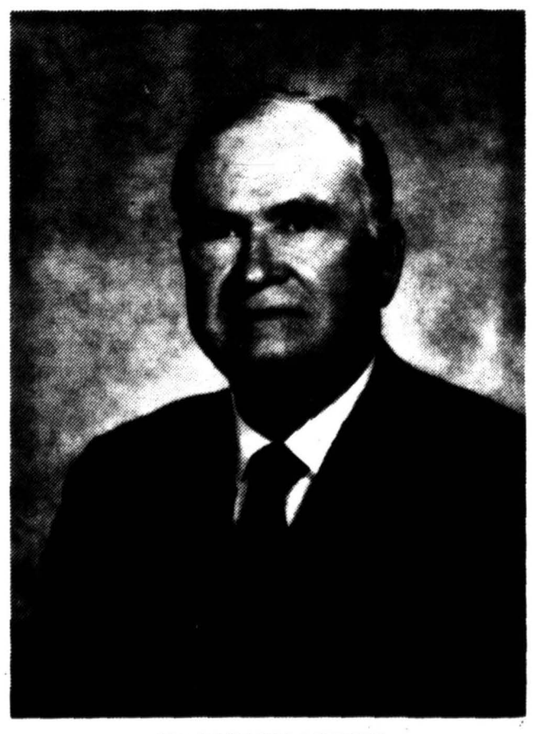
Neill was born in Butlerville, Ind. on March 14, 1898. He was a graduate of Stanford University in 1923 with a degree in civil engineering.

He worked for several irrigation districts and for a consulting engineering company, all in California. He was employed by California Water & Telephone Co., now California-American Water Co. Neill designed the Sweetwater Falls Dam in San Diego County.

"He designed many water systems throughout the state," Neill Jr. said.

The company sent him to the peninsula as its district manager in 1940.

In 1948, he established a small water company, later sold to Water West Co., that served Gonzales, Chualar and Marina.



CLAYTON NEILL

He was developing a library of Irish genealogy publications as a hobby.

He is survived by his wife Dorothy Meyer Neill, his wife of 62 years, his son Clayton Neill Jr. of Carmel Valley and and Gilbert, of Carmel, also an engineer. He is also survived by four granddaughters.

Private services will be held at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley. Burial will be in El Carmelo Cemetery. Paul Mortuary is in charge of the arrangements.

Carmel residents have redoubled efforts at recycling

By NANCY HILLS

THOSE YELLOW and green recycling bins are becoming a familar sight to Carmel residents, which is just fine with Carmel Disposal Service Recycling Coordinator Jim Sheppard.

Since the program began last December, when about 2,400 of the stacking bins were distributed to each home and business for curbside pickup, Sheppard states that recycling in Carmel has probably doubled.

"We're happy with the way the program is going," he said.

But Sheppard want to add some cautionay notes and reiterate some of requirements for recycling.

The recycling bins must be out by 6 a.m. the morning of the resident's regular trash pickup day. Since the recycling truck is different than the regular trash pickup truck it comes at a different time.

"Please help us give the best possible service by putting out the recycling bins before 6 a.m.," Sheppard said.

Of the recycling materials, the company will pickup:

• Newspaper — This can include magazines and the slick inserts that come with the paper. The volume of newspaper, about 4 tons a month, is now sufficient to offset the clay in the slick paper. The newspapers can also be wet.

There is one thing they cannot take, however — the telephone book.

• Aluminum and plastic — There are two types of plastic that they can recycle and both are plastic used to hold beverages. One is the clear plastic soft drinks come in and the other is the opaque plastic used for water or milk containers.

"No plastic forks, plastic bags, plastic planting pots, plastic toys, hair brushes, the type of plastic everyday things that are going to be discarded we cannot take," Sheppard explained.

They only take aluminum cans for soft drinks, which do not have to be flattened.

"No pet food cans, pie plates or aluminum foil," he added.

• Glass — "We can accept bottle glass only. We don't accept window glass, mirrors or ceramics. All those have contaminents," Sheppard said.

The commercial district is the most prolific glass recyclers, with a pickup in that commercial district every day.

"Businesses are very happy to have someone take their glass bottles away," Sheppard said.

He added that if a business has more glass than will fit into one bin, it can use all three if they are not already in use.

The commercial district has another program, separate from the bins, that has been successful.

The cardboard pickup service has grown from a few participants to almost three quarters of the businesses downtown.

The pickup is three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, Sheppard said, and anyone in the commercial area that wishes to participate in this free program can call Carmel Disposal Service to sign up.

Even with the successful program, Sheppard said, only about 35 to 40 precent of Carmel residents are recycling; peninsulawide the trash taken to the landfill is only down by about 5 percent.

"That is a long, long way from the 50 percent reduction called by (a state Senate bill)," he said.

That bill requires the reduction but allows it to happen over a period of years.

"Most of the trash comes from business packaging done by industry and the variety of packaging in the commercial area," he added.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year, including the following:

• Tuesday and Thursday, June 12 and 14, 6 to 10 p.m.

• Saturday, July 21, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

• Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 14 and 16, 6 to 10 p.m.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

Strasser Kauffman seeks advisory committee volunteers

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is requesting volunteers to serve on an ad-hoc advisory committee to review Title 21, the proposed zoning ordinance for the unincorporated areas of the county outside of the coastal zone.

The group will make recommendations to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on possible modifications to the ordinance.

Applicants should be familiar with the county's land-use policies and procedures. They should also be prepared to work intensively for a two- to three-month period to review public comments, discuss and prepare recommendations to present to the board in September.

For consideration contact Strasser Kauffman in writing at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940 or call 647-7755.

The deadline for applications is June 13.

Reprieve given on Sands project: one year to start foundation

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council Tuesday night voted to allow the Little family up to one year to pour the foundation on its Carmel Sands Lodge project.

The Littles had appealed an administrative decision that the permits had expired for its proposed demolition and rebuilding of the 42-room Carmel Sands Lodge on the northeast corner of San Carlos Street and Fifth Avenue.

The project no longer meets general plan or commercial district ordinances.

City Attorney Don Freeman told the council that because it no longer complies with the general plan, which was revised in 1988, the council must either find that the permits had not expired and therefore the project is grandfathered in, or deny issuance of new permits.

The project received its final use permit in 1986 and design study approval in 1987.

In 1988, the council approved an ordinance that placed a time limit on the length of time permits are valid. The Littles' time limit ran out in April 1990.

Matt Little, the family spokesman, told the council that this was a "complicated project" that overwhelmed everyone involved. It was first submitted in 1981 and Olof Dahlstrand did the original plans.

"You may be familiar with the years of public hearings," he said.

As of April the Littles had not filed a hold harmless agreement, a 1,000-square-foot easement, or a valid Coastal Commission permit.

The Littles had received a Coastal Commission permit, also in 1987, but that too had expired. The Littles had not noticed the time limit on the permit, Matt Little explained, because there was so much paperwork involved with the project.

Thumping a large roll of plans down on the city council dias, he told the councilmembers that they did not begin the plans until 1987, after the design study was completed. They wanted to wait until then to begin drawing plans.

'To me, what I see here is a comedy of erros. Somebody is not catching the ball, and it is not the city. But I cannot just look at these guys and say 'tough luck.'

— Bob Fischer

"This cost $300,000," Little said.

The project was so complicated that one of the subcontractors working on the plans had been dead for five months before they knew about it.

Councilmember Barbara Brooks said that she felt sympathy for the Littles but that upholding the general plan was the most important duty of the council.

"Could we approve a project that no longer complies with the general plan?" Brooks said.

Councilmember Bob Fischer, after listening to the various legal debates about the project, said there are "grey areas" in every use permit issue and that "it is very easy to throw rocks."

"To me, what I see here is a comedy of erros. Somebody is not catching the ball, and it is not the city. But I cannot just look at these guys and say 'tough luck.' I would like to remind my colleagues that it is not black and white, there is a lot of grey and we need to look at this with a lot of heart."

Fischer moved that the council find the applicant was confused by the complicated process and that the permits were still valid. Technically, final approval was given Tuesday night.

The council amended the permit to state that rather than the normal two-year period to begin work, the Littles had one year to pour the foundation on the project.

Council tables moratorium plan

time with because it is very expensive to carry these houses and lots," said local realtor Tim Allen.

One person who spoke in favor of the ordinance was Carmel Heritage President Roger Newell.

Does the city know, "what is a historic building and what is the incentive for someone to save a historic building?" he said.

"If we are seeing an escalation of demolitions that is very threatening" to the process of historical preservation, he said.

Mayor Jean Grace said that historic preservation is a separate issue and that there appeared to be no emergency to warrant an urgency ordinance.

The council voted to table the ordinance, with White voting no.

AFTER MUCH debate, the council took 5 percent off the proposed permitted home size on 4,000-to-6,000-square-foot lots.

The change to a proposed R-1 ordinance was substantial enough that the city attorney told the council it would have to cancel the first reading until July.

The council retained in the ordinance a change in the definition of open space, which restricts it to natural earth and eliminates such things as driveways, pathways, decks and other non-plantable surfaces that are currently not considered part of the building site coverage.

The in the general plan, the council changed the amount of required open space to a minimum of 45 percent of the lot.

Prior to the ordinance, the council implemented changes to the general plan, one of which was a rewording that states floor area ratio (FAR), the ratio of the total floor area of a house to the lot size, cannot "exceed" 45 percent. Forty-five percent is the current FAR.

When the council came to planning commission's draft R-1 ordinance it changed the proposed 45 percent FAR from 45 percent to 40 percent for 4,000, 5,000 and 6,000-square-foot lots, lot sizes that are a part of a sliding scale for floor area ratio and lot sizes. The percentage of FAR decreases as the lot size increases.

That reduces the maximum size of house and garage allowed on those lots from:

- On a 4,000-square-foot lot from 1,800 square feet to 1,600 square feet.
- On a 5,000-square-foot lot from 2,150 square feet to 2,000 square feet. The FAR dropped from 43 percent to 40 percent.
- On a 6,000-square-foot lot from 2,460 to 2,400 square feet. The proposed FAR went from 41 percent to 40 percent.

Lot sizes from 7,000 square feet to 12,000 square feet remained the same.

The council did change a provision in the ordinance that would set the maximum site coverage allowed — which includes driveways, pathways and other unplantable surfaces — on any lot larger than 12,500 square feet at 38 percent. The ordinance mandated no building site coverage could exceed 3,500 square feet.

The council's action was in response to some property owners who have 40,000-square-foot lots — almost an acre — who stated that the long driveway alone could put them over coverage.

Voting in favor of the change were councilmembers Brooks, who proposed the amendments to the draft ordinance, White and Wright, with Grace and Fischer dissenting.

REC LEAGUE SOCKO

By Pat Lenz

Winding down

THE SOCKO season is winding down, but not without some controversy.

It has been learned that the editors of a very popular men's magazine intend to do a pictorial entitled "The Girls Of The Carmel Socko League." In addition, a popular women's magazine intends to do a similar photo spread on the men of the league. Needless to say, city and league officials are uncertain on how to handle the situation. The added exposure would create a greater interest in the league, meaning more fan interest, which would help in negotiating a new television contract.

Then there is also the threat from some feminist and men's rights groups that they will picket games and boycott team sponsors' businesses. All in all the decision to pose or not should be decided by the individual and not by pressure groups. Now with barely two weeks left before the playoffs, teams were fine-tuning their play this week.

ENERGIZERS DE-ENERGIZED: D.C. Defenders-8 Energizers-2. The resurgent Defenders dropped the Energizers from the ranks of the unbeaten. The Defenders flashed their stellar defense again, keeping the Energizers off the bases and turning two double plays to kill Energizer rallies. The Defenders have beaten the Energizers three times over the last two years, heating up a rivalry for the playoffs.

HITS, TIES & VIDEOTAPES: Jack Londons-9 Sports Barn-9. The Sports Barn missed a chance to tie for first place by playing to a tie with the surprising Jack London's team. Jacks went out to a six-run lead to force the Sports Barn to battle back to force a tie after nine innings. Jacks seems to be peaking as the playoffs approach.

BELL'S BOMBERS RUN: Bells Bombers-20 Meyers Painting-8. Bell's Bombers continued their run-scoring onslaught through the league by burying Meyers. Bell's put the game away with a seven-run sixth inning. Bells blasted out three home runs in the game.

SHARK SIGHTING: CYC Sharks-18 Highlands Inn-13. The Sharks behind an eight-run first inning rolled on to the win over a tough Highlands Inn team. Both teams did a lot of heavy hitting throughout the game with a combined seven home runs being hit between the two teams.

SENIOR LINE

By 'Les' Lesser

Health and conflicts

I RECENTLY attended the National Conference of the American Society on Aging in San Francisco. The two main themes seemed to be the need for a national health plan and the question of intergenerational conflicts. If you have any thoughts on these subjects, please send this column a letter.

MAIL ORDER DRUGS

Mail order drugs may seem to be the preferred way to purchase drugs if you look at price, but purchasing prescription drugs requires more than just price. Personal contact with your local pharmacist gives you an opportunity to discuss the effect of the drug and the interaction with other prescriptions that you may be taking.

Your local pharmacist generally offers home delivery and is available to you on a 24-hour basis. Many pharmacies offer discounts to seniors. Check your local pharmacy for this.

You cannot trade the personal service of the local pharmacist with the impersonal mail order operator. Prescriptions in several cases may be expensive but the drug manufacturers are the cause of it. Pharmacists have little control over price and are caught in the middle between government regulations and price mandates of the pharmaceutical company.

Your health is much too important to be placed at risk. Think about it more carefully when you decide to use mail order.

WHAT IS HOSPICE?

We are fortunate to have a unique hospice program on the central coast. It provides a wide range of health care services and support to meet the special needs of patients faced with life threatening illness and their families. Anyone needing the support of hospice may contact 648-4210 or 758-2828 for more information.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write "Senior Line," Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, CA, 93906 or call 372-7662 or 757-5905. "Senior Line" needs your name, address and phone number, but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Kindred spirits

LANGUAGE IS wonderfully entertaining when correctly and artfully employed. Winston Churchill, a Michelangelo of the written word, once described the Scottish Prime Minister, Ramsey McDonald, as "a calvinist, a pacifist and a tea-totaler; a man with all the virtues I abhor and none of the vices I admire."

Churchill was a man who enjoyed the wit of John Kennedy and Kennedy was a great admirer of the elder statesman. Kennedy's Harvard thesis was published under the title Why England Slept, a complimentary reflection of Churchill's While England Slept.

Following the Bay of Pigs disaster, the American people rallied around Kennedy. His popularity immediately following the failed invasion soared to 82 percent. Kennedy was dumbfounded. "My God," he exlaimed, "it's as bad as Eisenhower. The worse I do, the more popular I get." He never disclosed that the invasion had been planned by Eisenhower and Dulles, the troops already trained and the dates selected before he came into office. In a Churchillian manner, he took responsibility for failure without blaming his predecessor. More recent occupants of the White House might have learned from that lesson.

Churchill served as a war correspondent in India and in South Africa. He was proud to have participated in the last charge in history by British cavalry. When asked how this had occurred, he told the inquirer, with uncharacteristic modesty, "It was a simple choice. Charge the enemy or be trampled to death." When Kennedy, whose PT boat was rammed by a Japanese destroyer off the Solomons, subsequently saved the lives of his crew, he was asked how he had become such a hero. He said "It was involuntary. They sank my boat."

Churchill was constantly vexed by Lady Astor, the wife of Lord Astor and the first woman elected to Parliament (an American turned more British than the British). "If you were my husband, Winston," she once admonished Churchill, "I'd put poison in your tea." Without a moment's hesitation, Churchill replied, "And if you were my wife, I'd drink it."

Churchill was criticized, despite his leadership in war, for his failure to provide the spiritual guidance some people felt the country needed. "Since I became Prime Minister, I have appointed no fewer than six new bishops," he protested, "What more do they want." When the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against prayer in the school, Kennedy commented that to the best of his knowledge prayer was still permissible in the home. His own Catholic bishops were not amused and after a stinging public rebuke by them, Kennedy told his aide, Kenny O'Donnell, "Now I know why Henry (VIII) started his own church."

As part of the tradition of his upper class origins and Oxford education, Churchill worked to a degree at being an English country farmer, spending years laying a great brick wall at the entrance to his estate with his own hands. Kennedy's background was similar, born to wealth and educated at Choate and Harvard. During Kennedy's presidential campaign in West Virginia, he was interrupted during a speech by a grizzled veteran of the coal mines.

"Is it true," he asked the young candidate, "you've never wanted for anything in your life?"

"I guess so," Kennedy replied.

"Is it true you've never done a day's work with your hands?"

Kennedy nodded.

"Well, let me tell you this," said the miner, "You haven't missed a thing."

Neither Kennedy nor Churchill was delicate about those for whom they had little respect. Barry Goldwater and John Kennedy shared a rather low opinion of Richard Nixon, whom Goldwater would characterize years later as the "most dishonest man I ever knew." When Goldwater asked Kennedy what he would have done had Nixon won the presidential election in 1960, Kennedy said "I'd have gone to Ireland and bought a farm." "What would you have taken with you?" Barry asked. "The Constitution," Kennedy said. "With Nixon in the White House it wouldn't serve much use here."

Churchill enjoyed painting in his later years, as did one of his bodyguards. The man was asked to show his canvasses to the former prime minister, who was quite impressed. "They're much better than mine," he remarked, "but yours, of course, will have to be judged on merit." When Kennedy appointed his brother Robert to be Attorney General, he was subjected, with good cause, to charges of nepotism. Kennedy's comment was "I can't see anything wrong with giving him a little legal experience before he goes out to practice law."

Kennedy was not Churchill's equal on the stage of history. He never had the opportunity to live the full life Churchill did. What Kennedy seemed able to do, as few before him and none since, was to bring to the office of the president what Churchill brought to his stage, a flair for the educated use of language and those most prized attributes in its best use, humor and wit.

One could dwell all day on the vulgarities of Johnson and Nixon, on the humorless, drab linguistic landscapes of Ford, Carter and Bush, and on the stumbling and embarrassing misquotes of Reagan (except, of course, when reading from a teleprompter). From such future horror, Lord deliver us. Picking on Dan Quayle is almost too easy. What can be added to his recent assertion, "If we don't succeed, then we run the risk of failure"? This and the seemingly never-ending gamut of error are being published in The Quail Quarterly, a book rapidly approaching the size of Reagan's Reign of Error. Mark Hopkins wrote "Language is the picture and counterpart of thought." It would all be terribly funny, if it weren't so frightening.

THE HERALD runs a column in their classified ad section titled Money to Loan. Loan is a noun. It is the thing created when one lends something. We do not loan, we lend. It is a more and more commonly heard error, but the heading ought to read correctly, Money to lend.

There's only one way to come out ahead of the pack.

Last year 105,000 Americans under age 65 died of heart attacks. In fact, 45 percent of all heart attacks happen to people younger than 65. If you're old enough to be concerned about heart disease, be wise enough to take the steps recommended by the American Heart Association to reduce your risk. Don't smoke. Reduce the fat and cholesterol in your diet. And control high blood pressure. Act now. Because it's never too early to start taking care of yourself.

Point Lobos

abalone chowder in abalone shells at his restaurant on Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey.

"Anybody who was anybody went there to eat," Loesch said.

Movie companies came and went, beginning in 1920 with Erich von Stroheim directing Foolish Wives. Mary Pickford was here for two of her movies The Love Light and Tess of the Storm Country. All told, there were as many, if not more than, 34 films shot at least partially on the point.

Anyone who has dabbed his or her eyes while watching Treasure Island or shivered at the mystery of Rebecca was at the same time experiencing the scenery of Point Lobos.

During World War II, servicemen used the cabin as a home and eight sergeants wrote their names on the wall. Later it became a residence for park employees.

THE CABIN served that purpose until about four years ago when the state of California parks department wanted visitors to be able to see the cabin.

Loesch, a retired salesman and a docent for the park, leading nature tours and such, became involved in preparing the cabin for visitors.

"When I first saw the cabin, it was not in good shape," Loesch said. "We had to strengthen the foundation and before that happened we gave the state archeologist a chance to come in and do a dig. It took two weeks."

The archaeologist, Herb Dallas, determined that the cabin had been built and primarily occupied by the Chinese, though in truth no one knows precisely when it was constructed. Loesch said that "we believe it was in the early 1850s."

A piece of the floor is cut out and covered with plexiglass, so visitors can see a sample of the artifacts in the dirt floor just as they were found.

Loesch felt the cabin should become a museum and set out to collect information for the exhibits.

"Mary Wright, (state) district superintendent of parks and recreation, went along with the idea," he said.

Loesch, who said he usually finds history "boring," was first interested in researching the films shot at Point Lobos, but the dig widened his scope.

"Watching the archaeologist and working with the volunteer crews — all those things made it interesting," he said.

They decided to design exhibits around each time period.

"The next thing was to collect the artifacts," he said.

Loesch contacted descendents, such as the Kodanis, and researched the park's history through government records and local newspapers, including The Carmel Pine Cone.

"I knocked on a lot of doors," he added.

His efforts were recognized by both the California State Assembly and Senate through a resolution. And he is still collecting more.

"If anyone has photographs or information they could share, would they please contact me," Loesch said, adding he is listed in the telephone book in Carmel.

The work was finished about seven months ago and since then has been open to visitors almost every afternoon from noon to 5 p.m.. Volunteer docents keep the cabin open and it is best to call ahead to Point Lobos to ensure that a docent is there.

"Most people come here and think this is virgin territory. They are amazed at the hubbub of activity from the past," he said.

Of the 14 cabins built by the Chinese families when they arrived here after their long journey, this is the only one left.

"God knows why they left this one," Loesch said.

There may be one explanation. According to Loesch there are "a lot of stories about ghosts."

If a docent is not in attendance, other less substantial hosts may want to open the door and whisper tales of their past.

consistently backed Caltrans' plans for a freeway through Hatton Canyon.

Last winter, Karas told The Pine Cone that he believed public support was flowing in the direction of widening the existing highway, which is why he was striking a different course from his fellow politicos.

In his letter, Pollock reiterated concerns that widening would entail massive delays while further studies were conducted.

That's not to mention finding funding for the option.

"Unless the Hatton Canyon alignment is abandoned, and the state rights-of-way sold, I would not recommend that state or federal funds be used to widen the existing highway," he said.

MEANWHILE, PERENNIAL Hatton Canyon activist Noel Mapstead lashed out this week at the more-conservative Hatton Canyon Coalition.

"I don't talk to them," Mapstead said. "They've created a machine to make money, but they haven't learned anything about environmental law; they're as bad as the county."

The Hatton Canyon Coalition is currently preparing studies on alternatives to Caltrans' plans and is not endorsing any design at this point.

"We have been and continue to be interested in environmentally sensitive issues," said Joyce Stevens, coalition spokeswoman.

But Mapstead, who, along with Barbara Brooks, Stephen Brooks, Stanley Worth and Darby Worth, are going to court at 9:30 a.m. Friday, June 29, to attempt and overturn a state Coastal Commission ruling, questioned the integrity of the coalition.

"The coalition was deliberately set up to file a lawsuit and they haven't filed one yet," said the Carmel artist who has filed several lawsuits opposing the freeway. "Here I am with four lawsuits on only $3,000. What's the coalition done? Nothing."

Not so, said Stevens.

"The coalition's traffic engineering consultant, Wilbur Smith Associates, is right on schedule with phase one, which will be an independent traffic analysis," she said. "By July, WSA will begin working with Skidmore, Owings and Marrill on phase two for the coalition for the development of credible alternatives to Caltrans' devastating design."

Panetta seeking House page

YOUNG MEN and women who are interested in serving as a page in the House of Representatives this fall were urged by Rep. Leon E. Panetta to contact one of his offices as soon as possible to seek information on how to apply.

Panetta is authorized to appoit one of the 66 House pages. He is currently seeking applicants to serve from Sept. 2, 1990 to Jan. 25, 1991.

Only students who will be in the 11th-grade this fall and who maintained at least a 3.0 grade point average in certain basic academic courses during ninth and 10th-grades are eligible.

Pages who serve during the school year must attend the House Page School, near the Capitol. School sessions begin early in the morning to allow pages to begin work when the House goes into session each day. Their work day ends when the House adjourns.

Page duties consist of delivering correspondence and small packages within Congress, answering telephones near the House floor, taking messages for House members, and other duties.

The deadline for submitting an application to Panetta's Monterey office is June 15, 1990.

Master plan aims to preserve valley character

By SUSAN BECK

THE CARMEL Valley Master Plan's primary goal is to maintain the valley's rural character through the preservation of its nature and quiet lifestyle.

That's what 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman told members of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce at a chamber luncheon last week.

One of the elements in achieving the plan's main goal is the valley's traffic pattern. Strasser Kauffman said that she is not wedded to any particular traffic plan, however, she stressed the danger of preempting a long-term solution for the greater Carmel area's traffic problems because that would leave the all. The federal government will provide 80 community without funding for any plan at percent of the monies needed for the Hatton Canyon Freeway project and the state will make up the difference.

"After 40 years the community needs a traffic solution, and eventually we will have to bite the bullet and decide on something," said Strasser Kauffman. Her decision will be predicated on the input from the freeway's environmental impact report, the Carmel Valley Traffic Study, and the Hatton Canyon Coalition's engineering study of the freeway proposal.

One benefit of the valley master plan regarding traffic is the unique "traffic trigger" mechanism policy. When a certain measure of service is lost or a threshold is reached on Carmel Valley Road, there is a built-in opportunity to re-evaluate the environmental impact of the situation, said Strasser Kauffman. Carmel Valley Road is monitored twice a year, which is more than any other road in the Monterey County, she added.

Addressing the question of decreasing the traffic congestion by placing traffic signals along Carmel Valley Road, Strasser Kauffman said, "There is a purposeful attempt not to have signals in the valley. It would contrast with the rural endeavor. Signals work on Highway 68 because they open up the side street traffic, but it's not an ideal solution in the valley, and I would like to see it avoided."

The Carmel Valley Master Plan has a permanent provision for the eastern segment of the valley to be two lanes because it is a low-density area. The plan also states that the rest of the valley is scheduled to go to four lanes from Via Petra to mid-valley at Robinson Canyon. However, "If the population doesn't want it — it won't happen," said Strasser Kauffman.

Another concern for the valley's preservation is housing. Strasser Kauffman said the Carmel Valley Master Plan is protective and progressive with specific unique limitations. The maximum limit on new structures for the next 20 years is 1,310 units. The quota is 37 units annually. She does not think the valley will ever reach the maximum.

Meeting the demands of traffic and housing will be difficult, but the master plan has a good solid foundation to work from, said Strasser Kauffman.

"If it works as I expect it to, we will ultimately have things as they are, a mixed community. Young, traditional, and retired families from all different economic endeavors."

Strasser Kauffman said there is no reason to change the master plan — just tighten it. She is more worried about the input from outside communities.

"We can do the best job possible in the valley yet still be subjected with too much activity from the surrounding areas. If the potential growth takes place in other areas, we will be landlocked."

Strasser Kauffman suggested getting involved in regional politics. There is a need for more inter-community cooperation, more "grassroots" regional government. Otherwise, it will become an extension of the state, allowing opportunities for "special interests" to come in and take control.

"If we can't get the adjacent cities and counties in the region to work with us, then our situation in Carmel Valley is threatened," she said.

VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION LAUNCHES PATIENT CARE CAMPAIGN

The third annual Caring Club Campaign was officially launched June 1 by the Central Coast Visiting Nurse Association. Honorary chairperson of the campaign is Sylvia Panetta, wife of Rep. Leon Panetta.

"The Caring Club Campaign is designed to raise funds that will enable VNA to fulfill its mission of providing high-quality home hursing services to everyone, regardless of their ability to pay for the care," said Mrs. Panetta. "When a patient is unable to pay for their care, VNA uses the funds from the Caring Club to cover the cost."

As a former nurse for the Visiting Nurse Association, Panetta knows first-hand the need for skilled care in the home setting. "I like to hear that people are able to leave the hospital earlier or avoid it altogether because VNA can help them recover from illness or injury in their own home," she said.

"Modern technology has developed to the point where virtually any care available in a hospital can be provided at home."

According to Mary Schrady, chairman of the Monterey Development Council of VNA, Panetta has sent personal letters to residents of Monterey County and San Benito County asking for their support in the campaign. The VNA expects to receive over $25,000 in public contributions.

In addition to skilled nursing care and therapies, VNA manages three adult day care centers and offers free blood pressure clinics throughout the Central Coast.

VNA is the only non-profit home health agency in the area, with offices in Monterey, Salinas, and Hollister. Over 4,500 home care visits are made each month through the three offices. To make a contribution to the Caring Club, send your

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Death of a friend

June 10, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

About 30 years ago, I was invited by a friend to have lunch with him at the New York Press Club. The secretary gave me an honorary membership card which I have not used and a small leather-bound address book. On the last page there was a poem by Charles Hana Townsend. It is a far cry from great poetry but it does contain a salutary message.

When I read of the death of Julius Trescony, the pioneer rancher who died peacefully in the bed in which he was born 92 years ago on Rancho San Lucas in southern Monterey County, I searched my files for the poem, or rhyme. I had planned to visit Julius for the past five or six years.

Around the corner I have a friend,
In this great city that has no end.
Yet days go by and weeks rush on
Before I know it a year is gone
And I do not see my old friend's face,
For Life is a swift and terrible race.
He knew I loved him just as well
As in the days that I rang his bell.
"Tomorrow" I say, "I will call on Jim
Just to show that I am thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes and tomorrow goes
Around the corner, yet miles away.
"Here is a telegram, sir,"
"Jim died today!"
Around the corner, a vanished friend.

What is it, Lord, that's paved with good intentions? Help us not only to keep our friends but deserve to keep them. I wonder too, if all Rotarians who talk such a good political game went to the polls on June 8. They certainly didn't do so well at the last Carmel election, did they?

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

American veterans of wartime service are getting on in years. Of the more than nine million who served in World War II, the average age is 67. For veterans of the Korean war the average is 58, and for Vietnam vets the average soon will be 45. Altogether, the number of veterans adds up to 27 million. Studies by the United States Veterans Affairs Department show that patients in VA hospitals are likely to be older, poorer and sicker than those in other hospitals. Another study, by the American Legion, shows that only 10 percent of all veterans ever obtain treatment at the VA hospitals.

Laurie Lewis & company play benefit

LAURIE LEWIS and the Grant Street Band will perform a benefit concert for KAZU 90.3FM on Saturday, June 9 at the Pacific Grove Middle School, 835 Forest Ave. beginning at 8 p.m.

Singer, songwriter and fiddler Laurie Lewis has accomplished a long list of musical feats. She can play old-time or bluegrass fiddle with authenticity, sing upbeat, hard-driving bluegrass or heartbreaking country. She writes some of the most imaginative and poignant music found on the "new country" scene.

Lewis has delighted audiences for years as a member of various groups including: the Arkansas Sheiks, the Phantoms of the Opry, the Good Ol' Persons, Blue Rose and as lead for the Grant Street Band.

She twice won the California State Women's Fiddling Championship.

Laurie Lewis returns to the Monterey Bay area with her group the Grant Street Band comprised of Tom Rozum, a mandolinist formerly of the group the Rhythm Rascals; Scott Nygaard, a guitarist formerly from the Puget Sound Guitar Workshop; Tammy Fassaert, a Canadian vocalist; and Tony Furtado, the National Bluegrass Banjo Champion of 1987 who has just released a solo album, Swamped on Rounder Records.

This concert is a benefit for listener supported, public radio station KAZU. Tickets are $8 in advance and $10 at the door. They are on sale at Bookworks, Pacific Grove; Center Stage Ticketing, Monterey; Do Re Mi Records, Barnyard, Carmel and the Yellow Submarine Record Shop in Salinas.

For more information call 375-7275 or 649-4353.

ARTS & LEISURE

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Human promise

THAT OLD SAW looks particularly bloody today. The old saw says: bad news sells papers. Bad news also clubs its readers (and writers) into defensive dullness. There's so much bitterness and lunacy erupting, you see. Let's juxtapose sad flashes and glad ones — so to balance out the heaviness with human promise.

— Artist Bruni Sablan specializes in jazz portraits. She has many friends here who care about her work and general well-being. Bruni reports that someone shot out the front window of her Los Gatos gallery and studio. At the time, that window held a painting of Miles Davis. "It was the Miles they were after," Bruni believes.

— An extraordinary jazz vocalist named Patty Peterson claims attention through her first CD (Celebration 5020). The More I See You announces nationally that this young woman can stand proud in any venue. Her large, clear, passionate voice reminds me of the Sonny Rollins approach to standards: daring and witty flights that proceed from a core of tenderness and common sense, never mutually exclusive. Surprise; she makes tonal irony serve positive ends and the real storyteller's urge. All this on tunes we've heard a thousand times before.

Local musician Terry Miller worked with Miss Peterson in the Twin Cities. "The whole family plays or sings jazz professionally," Terry observes. "The mother, three brothers, one sister. Back there, if you don't know the Petersons, you don't know the scene. Just one of those amazing clans."

Brother Billy Peterson served the session as bassist, producer, arranger. Dave Hazeltine at the piano. Some pretty work on trumpet by Ira Sullivan. Patty's successful gambles with time pay respects to Carmen McRae while achieving singular freshness.

— My favorite images of jazz bassist Joe (Smokey) Ruffin involve real joy. Joe bobbing like a partytime dancer as he took solos with the Monterey Peninsula College Jazz Orchestra. Joe carrying his baby daughter all over Monterey Jazz Festival "so she can soak it up." The man's enthusiasm during our interview, some years back, on KRML Radio.

Today's tragic requirement: condolences. Joe's sister Tina Marie was killed along with 27-year-old Kelvin Collins in what Seaside police called a double homicide. At this writing, Harvey Lee Dillard faced two charges of murder and was being held ($1 million bail). Detective Joseph Maltby told me: "There may be a couple of motives, but I don't want to speculate further."

Both Miss Ruffin and Kelvin were outstanding student athletes, and musicians at church and school. He played jazz drums in the Monterey High program.

— Jazz trombonist and arranger Chuck Murphy reveals that he's writing charts for a 10-piece band (plus vocalist) in Norway. The relationship began when the localite answered an ad carried by a national jazz magazine. Chuck says at least one of those arrangements will be taken into the recording studio. "I've been asked to do two or three charts per month. The money's always welcome. More than that, having my things used feels very gratifying."

— Major jazz players (Bobby Hutcherson, Don Cherry, Pharaoh Sanders, Jessica Williams, Ed Kelly, John Handy, others) did a benefit at Yoshi's in Oakland the other night for the young daughter of drummer Eddie Moore. Eddie suffered a fatal heart attack while working behind Handy upon the same stage. He'd lived about half a century.

Eddie played with Dexter Gordon, Merl Saunders (his cousin), Sonny Rollins, Stanley Turrentine, Woody Shaw, Bennie Wallace, Dewey Redman. His last gig hereabouts was that all-star blowout at Mission Ranch Barn: Bobby, Harold Land, Buddy Montgomery, Jeff Chambers. A person of great energy and glee, Eddie delighted the crowd with the surprising variety of sounds he drew from a relatively small trap set.

Moore may be heard on Merl's new album: Blues from the Rain Forest. This was released just a few weeks before Eddie's passing.

— Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble simply gets better and better. Bill Allison, Peggy Nesbitt Brown, Lee Durley, Lauri Hofer. If you haven't heard this bright gang, they'll be at Barbara Murphy's Portofino Cafe quite soon (6/21). That's downstairs in Pacific Grove Plaza. The Frank Myers sendup of madrigal conventions — very funny stuff. At Monterey Bay Club recently, each voice got solo time. Lee and Peggy have highly effective ways with ballads. Bill's a bopper. Miss Hofer likes hard-edged, often witty, funky treatments.

— Forcing a choice. Monterey Bay Blues Festival happens June 23-24. The fourth annual Fats Waller Memorial Jazz Festival will cook from noon till midnight on June 23 in Watsonville. (Producer Charles Duggan opens the Fats Waller show Ain't Misbehavin' on June 11 at San Francisco's Marines Memorial Theater. New York cast. Limited run. Ticketron.)

— The much-hyped Dick Tracy flick hits movie screens a little bit later this month. Warren Beatty plays the comic strip cop as a lover of jazz; Madonna renders nightclub singer Breathless Mahoney. Great quote from production designer Dick Sylbert: "I'm too old to bunt. When I get up now, I swing for the fence."

SIGHT BITES: Papa Jake and pro pals enjoy the spotlight at Shanty Malone's in Valley Hills Center (right beside Quail Lodge). Saturday through Tuesday evenings (6-9) "all summer long." So says proprieter George Malone.

• Live at the Jazz Workshop. That excellent first album of vocalist Kitty Margolis has gone into a CD edition (Mad-Kat 1001). All the LP material plus a bonus track — Too Marvelous For Words. The CD may be bought at Tower Records or by mail: PO Box 253 — San Francisco — 94101-9991. In the latter case, add $2.50 handling. Right now, Kitty's on a two-week tour. New York, Boston.

• Venezuelan harpist Carlos Guedes and his Dallas-based trio — Desvio — plays the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club on Tuesday night (6/12). One critic described Carlos as "Milton Nascimento meets Peter Gabriel." Cover of $3 per. Guedes was a bassist and guitarist in Caracas before undertaking jazz studies at North Texas State University (hot school). The unit has released its initial CD via Heads Up Records International; the current tour supports that item.

Others: George Marsh and friends (6/7), Terry Hanck with his Soulrockers (6/8-9), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (6/10), Don Pendergrass plus pals (6/11), Higher Feelings (6/13-14).

• Radio personality Steve Kane says Monterey Brewing Company welcomes the KAZU Blues Jam every Sunday afternoon beginning at two o'clock. Singers, players, fans — "all invited."

• At Portofino on Saturday evening (6/9) — Titos Sompa and his drummers plus Heather Secord with backup band. Eight o'clock kick; $7 per. Reservations suggested (373-7379).

• Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz welcomes the all-star group fronted by pianist Larry Vucovich. Tom Harrell, Pete Escovedo, Eddie Marshall, Jeff Chambers. Monday evening (6/11) at eight. It's $11 per; Center Stage Ticketing.
Next: the great Don Pullen Trio (6/18).

• Pianist Ace Hill continues at the Doubletree Lobby Lounge. Thursday and Friday evenings (5:30-8:30); Saturday night (7:30-11:30).

• Bill Allison needs to network with teachers and potential sponsors interested in aiding Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra's Education Outreach. Call 372-5824.

• San Francisco's Jazz in the City non-profit will present the knockout Stride Piano Summit next week (Friday night 6/15) at Davies Symphony Hall. Dick Hyman, Ralph Sutton, Jay McShann, Mike Lipskin. And Sweets Edison on trumpet. Ticketmaster.

THE BOSS — Brilliant Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito (above) leads a quartet in concert at Hidden Valley Music Seminars on Friday night (6/15). Ducats at $10 apiece may be had through Center Stage Ticketing or at the door, which opens at 7:30 that evening. Producer Richard Armbrust will field any questions — 455-2292.

Marjorie Evans Gallery showcases work of a dozen peninsula artists

A group of 12 artists have a show of their paintings at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center located at Ninth and San Carlos in Carmel.

This loose coalition of working artists brings together in one show many facets of a painter's need to express visually one fundamental human quality — the creative self.

Art, as Webster defines the word, is "any system of rules and traditional methods for the practice of a craft...the application of knowledge and skill."

Interestingly, each painting in the show reflects the strong individuality of its creator while harmonizing with the whole. This is not surprising, considering the individual and collective backgrounds of the members of the group who lightly refer to themselves as the "Rainbow Armadillo."

Aside from being long-time friends, they share another common denominator in George DeGroat with whom over the years they have revelled in paint.

The participating artists are Lynda Jardine, Hal Watts, Carolyn Mitchell, Anne Dalbey, Nancy Hanna, Margaret Leutzinger, Charity Crane, Molly Brubaker, Maria Lalor, Bob McClung, Bea Kress and Jean Moritz.

MUSIC CORNER

Chamber orchestra appears sensitive, accomplished

THE MUSICAL WEATHER created by Michael Nowak and the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra inside Sunset Theater Sunday afternoon came close to matching the lovely late spring day outside the hall. The final concert of the season featured a particularly felicitous program and some of the most sensitive and accomplished playing I have ever heard from these players.

In my opinion it was a good decision initially to bring Michael Nowak in to lead the orchestra and it promises well for the future now that it has been announced that he is their permanent conductor. His musical and educational credentials are excellent and the fact that he is a fine professional string player gives him rare insight into how to get his mainly string orchestra to execute his wishes. He is a hands-on leader who can explicitly demonstrate what results he wants and how to achieve them.

What one specially noticed about the program was that this was intimate music, played with a canny awareness of its innate style. Chamber orchestra repertoire is different from that of the full sized symphony. The volume and scale are less weighty. The muscular attacks are smaller and the stylistic emphasis mostly harks back to a more elegant polished musical atmosphere and a limited and more informed audience.

The opening selection, Handel's "Concerto Grosso, Op. 6 No. 11" was noteworthy for the crispness and rhythmic clarity of the orchestra playing the conductor instilled into it.

Definition in the fugal lines was well maintained and the interplay of the concertino and the orchestra was carefully carried out. In the finale there were bird-like twitterings and light-hearted imitations which were airily graceful and elegant. The music was entertaining and diverting but stayed on the surface of the notes.

The Mozart "Concerto No. 3 for Horn and Orchestra" K. 447 was much more substantial musically. Hornist Richard Todd was the superior soloist. He has an exceptionally refined tone, unusual in that it is closer to a woodwind rather than a brass sound and technically he is in complete command of his very demanding instrument. The partnership of soloist, orchestra and conductor was on a very high performance level. The dynamic relationships were sensitively conceived and expertly carried out. Mozart seldom composed mere accompaniments in his concertos, requiring a skilled collaboration, which is what Nowak created during the concerto.

The Romanza was lyrical with the horn singing its melody in operatic aria fashion. Todd brought delicacy as well as drama into his playing and in the Finale, performed with sparkle and grace.

The "Romanian Folk Dances" by Bartok were a clever programming contrast and were well played. Nowak conducted with an interpretation full of stylistic rubatos, flavorful warmth and strong rhythmic excitement. There were several very well taken instrumental solos.

The program concluded with the Bach "Brandenburg Concerto in F Major" BWV 1047. It too is a concerto grosso and Richard Todd, horn (substituting on the clarino trumpet line); Guy Hardy, oboe; David Dally, violin and Mimi Carlson, flute were the highly accomplished concertino. Using the horn rather than the high (clarino) trumpet changes the tonal color of the entire work, but it is an acceptable and pleasing alteration, albeit a darkening one. The mellow toned horn led the soloists in a merry chase in the first movement. The group was well matched and Todd's tone blended in very well as the spirited virtuoso lines proceeded.

The Andante is scored for violin, oboe and flute soloists, plus a continuo of harpsichord and cello. Nowak did not conduct as this is truly a chamber group. Whoever chose the temp erred on the fast side which detracted from the grace and sweetness of the melodic lines. They were moved along relentlessly and while well played, this music needs time to breathe and sigh.

The fugal finale was once again full of spirit and verve. The horn led off flawlessly and everyone entered into the fray with good will and polished performances to bring the conert to a festive conclusion.

I hope that the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra maintains the focus and direction it displayed during this concert. There then surely is room for such a group here.

Tall ship visit highlights Maritime Heritage Day June 9

FOOD, ENTERTAINMENT and a visit from the tall ship Californian distinguish the first Maritime Heritage Day. The celebration begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 9 with a parade down Alvarado Street in Monterey.

Highlighting the event will be the presentation of the model for th new Stanton Center complex which will be constructed at the site of the now existing Doubletree Hotel tennis courts.

This all-community celebration, sponsored by the Monterey History and Art Association, opens with a "Grand Parade" down Alvarado Street to the Custom House Plaza.

Numerous food and refreshment booths will be set up by local restaurants and others.

Continuous entertainment will be the order of the day and will include performances by El Mariachi Mixtlan; J. Mike Noonan and Cimmaron, Country and Western Band; Moonlighters Combo; and Los Dazantes de Alegria dancers.

Another highlight will be the arrival in port of the tallship Californian which is the official tallship of the State of California. The Californian is a re-creation of an 1849 vintage revenue cutter. It will participate in the ceremonies, fire a four-gun salute, and the captain will be rowed ashore to present a proclamation.

The climax of the celebration will be the presentation of the model for the new Stanton Center. This $5.8 million dollar project is currently in the fund-raising stage and construction is planned to begin this year with the grand opening in mid-1992. The History Complex will contain the Allen Knight Maritime Museum, a 100-seat auditorium, a small community room and the offices of the Monterey History and Art Association.

Course looks at Frank Lloyd Wright designs

The Art Department at Monterey Peninsula College announces plans to offer two short courses during Summer Session 1990 that focus on the career of architect Frank Lloyd Wright and a tour of the Carmel house of Mrs. Clinton Walker which Wright designed.

Architecture of the Monterey Peninsula: "The Wright Stuff" (Art 297) is a two-week, one-unit class focusing on Frank Lloyd Wright's career. The course also will feature the work of local architects Mark Mills and Olaf Dahlstrand. The class will meet in Room A-9 from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, July 9 through 20.

A one-day Architectural Tour of the Walker House (Art 296) will be offered Saturday, July 21. Those enrolled will meet in Room A-9 at 9 a.m. for an orientation session. The bus tour to the Walker House in Carmel will include work by Mills and Dahlstrand. A buffet lunch will be catered by the Mediterranean Market. A separate $25 fee will be collected the day of the trip to cover the cost of the bus and buffet lunch. Enrollment is limited to 45 people. This is a rare opportunity to visit the only house actually built by Frank Lloyd Wright on the Monterey Peninsula.

Registration for these classes can be processed by visiting the MPC Admissions Office between 8 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, or 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday. Pre-registration for Summer Session ends June 13. For additional information, call 646-4002.

Women's studies degree program launched at college

MONTEREY PENINSULA College students will be able to major in women's studies next fall at Monterey Peninsula College. Courses in women's studies have been offered for several years, but the college is now in the process of obtaining state approval to offer a degree program. The new program within the Social Sciences Division will be overseen by a full-time Women's Programs Coordinator/Instructor.

Screening of 34 applicants for the coordinator/instructor position is under way under the direction of Sepp Gamper, chairman of the Social Sciences Division at the college. The new Women's Studies program is scheduled to become effective with the start of the fall semester in late August, subject to the state's approval of granting women's studies program status.

Hiring of a Women's Programs Coordinator/Instructor, granting of department status to the Women's Studies program, and offering a Women's Studies major leading to an Associate in Arts degree attest to the growth of women's studies at Monterey Peninsula College.

"There is a perceived need for a Women's Studies program at Monterey Peninsula College, and for continuity and direction that will be possible with a full-time person," Gamper said.

MPC's decision to offer an Associate in Arts degree in Women's Studies is the latest step in higher education's recognition of the importance of women's issues. Universities are now offering master's degrees in the discipline, and plans are afoot to offer doctoral programs in women's studies.

The Women's Studies program at MPC currently offers eight courses taught by part-time instructors. Hiring of a full-time coordinator was made possible through the infusion of state funds for the purpose of increasing the ratio of full-time to part-time faculty members in community colleges.

Gamper points out that the Women's Programs Coordinator/Instructor is expected to devote 60 percent of her or his time - two men have applied for the position - to teaching and 40 percent to administration.

In addition to overseeing the Women's Studies program, the coordinator will be responsible for gender equity, single parent, reentry women and displaced homemaker programs on campus; develop curricula for credit and non-credit Women's Studies courses, including courses to assist reentry, low-income, and ethnically diverse women in adjusting to college life, the workplace, and in achieving their career and/or academic goals. The Coordinator also will assist with coordination of career counseling and resources related to career tracks for women; perform continuous outreach to students and the community; work with other campus departments to include the issues of race, class and gender into the curriculum at large.

"Women's studies is an integral part of the movement at Monterey Peninsula College to offer a multi-cultural curriculum," explains Phyllis Peet who has taught women's studies courses at MPC for several years.

Peet notes that several of the courses are interdisciplinary in nature and are offered through more than one department. For example, Black Women in America is offered through both the Ethnic Studies and Sociology Departments; Native American Women is offered through Anthropology and Ethnics Studies, and Images of Women in Western Culture is offered through the Humanities and Art Departments. A Women and Law course is offered through the Administration of Justice Department.

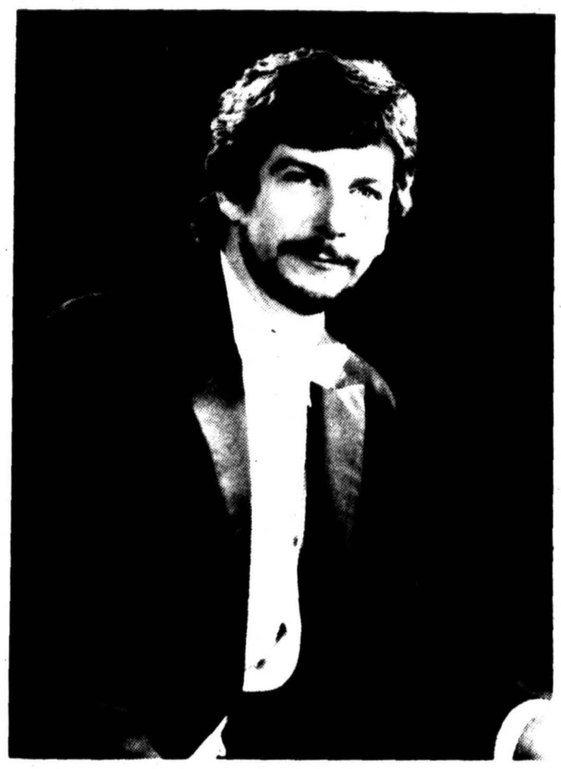
Rounding out the Women's Study program this spring are Women and Religion, Literature By and About Women, Women in American History and Psychology of Women. The courses are transferable to four-year institutions, and the Women in American History course meets the American History requirement for admission to the California State University system.

According to Peet, courses are being developed that relate to Hispanic and Asian women. She reports that the college plans to develop courses in support of reentry men and women who are returning to their studies following an absence of several years.

With the hiring of a Women's Program Coordinator/Instructor, Peet said the staff hopes space will become available for a women's research center. She envisions the center being a focal point for videos, books, magazines and current literature pertaining to women's issues. The center also would provide a meeting place and provide assistance to women.

Michael Nowak named conductor of the Monterey Bay Symphony

THE MONTEREY BAY Symphony Association has named Michael Nowak as the conductor of the Monterey bay Chamber Orchestra for the 1990-1991 concert season.



MICHAEL NOWAK, who has served as conductor of the San Luis Obispo County Symphony since 1984, has been appointed conductor of the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra for its 1990-1991 concert season.

Known to Central Coast audiences as the conductor of the San Luis Obispo County Symphony since 1984, Maestro Nowak returns to conduct the Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra June 3 in the current season after three appearances with it.

Following studies at Boston Universtiy and with violist William Primrose at Indiana University, Nowak became assistant conductor and violist with the Dallas Symphony under Anshel Brusilow while conducting the Dallas Youth Orchestra and then, from 1975 to 1980, played viola with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra under Neville Marriner.

Currently, Maestro Nowak is a member of the Stuttgart Bach Collegium with Helmuth Rilling, violist with Da Camera Piano Quartet of Los Angeles, and principal violist with the Oregon Bach Festival. Having participated in numerous festivals, including ones in Ojai, Anchorage, Tanglewood, and Carmel, as well as the Catalina Chamber Music Festival, he was a featured soloist with the San Luis Obispo Mozart Festival in 1989, when he was also the guest conductor for the University of Southern California Chamber Orchestra.

This spring, in addition to his conducting stints in San Luis Obispo and Carmel, Maestro Nowak was guest conductor of the Santa Barbara Chamber Orchestra.

Empirical psychology discussed

AN ESSAY with the title "The Transformation of God" by Edward F. Edinger, a Jungian analyst practicing in Los Angeles, will launch a discussion on empirical psychology. The program begins at 7 p.m. Friday, June 8 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

It is necessary to use terms with traditional religious connotations, Edinger states, "in order to demonstrate the psychological facts which underlie religious conceptions; moreover, there is scarcely any other way to communicate such material."

After quoting from a letter in which Jung "gives a psychological interpretation of the Christian myth and how that myth applies to modern man," the author amplifies that statement with allusions to dreams of modern people as well as to Biblical figures, Greek myths and to alchemical writings.

You don't have to be an American to die of a heart attack.

You also don't have to overeat. Or consume excessive amounts of cholesterol. Or ignore high blood pressure. Or smoke. But that's what a large segment of this country's population does. And that's one reason the United States has the highest incidence of heart attack in the world. At the American Heart Association, we're trying to help Americans change the way they live. And die.

What kind of a kid do you suppose Thomas Edison was?

Bet he looked at problems and saw solutions. Like Maurice Scales who invented Baby No-Mash to prevent doors from closing on little fingers.

Bet he saw how things were done, and imagined better ways to do them. Like Lillian Lukas who invented the Puddle Detecting Cane for the blind.

Bet he watched how things work and thought of ways to avoid wasting time or effort. Like Caitilin McCracken who invented the Orphan Kitten Feeder for Three.

Maurice, Lillian and Caitilin were three of the thousands of winners in the Invent America! education program.

And you know that small genius can grow up to become big genius—with the capacity to make America number one again.

To participate, just write Invent America!, 510 King Street, Suite 420, Alexandria, VA 22314, or call 703/684-1836.

If you're wondering if it's all worthwhile, just imagine what Edison would have said.

ROUNDUP

Foster care families needed

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home — whether it be for six months or the whole year — while family reunification services are offered, or eventually a permanent home.

Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled, the office reports. For information about fostering or adopting a child, call 899-8061 or 755-4660.

Tuition-free job training

The Carmel Unified School District is now accepting enrollment applications for adults in the cosmetology/-hairstylist ROP Training Program.

New classes start every 30 days. For further information, call Chuck Phillips at 624-3544.

Mace training class set

More daylight hours mean more outdoor activities! Individuals away from the security of a locked home or auto can reduce their chances of becoming victims of criminal attack by carrying Mace.

The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula and the Pacific Grove Police Department are jointly sponsoring a Mace Training Class from 6 to 8 p.m. on June 13. The class will be offered at the YWCA, 801 Lighthouse Ave., Monterey.

The fee is $23 for the license, and Mace can be purchased the night of the class for $14. Participants must be 18 or have parents permission. For more information, call the YWCA at 649-0834.

Welcome a French student

A group of 30 French students and their teacher/chaperone will visit Northern California for a four-week home stay this summer, July 6 through Aug. 3. The visit is sponsored by Nacel Cultural Exchanges, a non-profit group.

All of the students speak English, and they are coming to California to learn about American family life. Students bring their own spending money, and the program provides insurance. They may accompany host families if travel is planned during the stay.

Anyone interested in hosting a student may contact Ruby Gore, area coordinator for Nacel, at 356-1247.

Sunset Center seeks your opinions

Would you like to offer suggestions for programming to be offered at Sunset Center in Carmel?

Now in the process of forming is an "at large" advisory group to the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission's Program Committee. The group will propose new programs, suggest long-term series, activities and programs for a broad spectrum of audiences.

To learn more about this group, contact the Director's Office at Sunset Center, 624-3996, and leave your name and telephone number.

Seniors receive free health checks

Free health check-ups for older adults are offered by the SCANS (Senior Citizen and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over age 55 are eligible.

Appointments are required for the screenings, which are offered in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church; in Pacific Grove at the community center, 515 Junipero and at the Sally Judd Griffin Senior Center, 700 Jewell Ave., in New Monterey at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center.

To schedule an appointment, call 899-8100.

Children's theater program begun

Registration is now being taken for the Tres Arts Children's Theatre Summer Program. Classes begin June 26.

The program is offered through the Pacific Grove Recreation Department. Students will receive lessons in acting, music and dance from instructors Leslie Williams, Joe Poltrone and Barney Hulse.

Classes will meet 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at Robert Down School in Pacific Grove.

For information or reservations, call 649-3479.

Orchestra seeks musicians

Instrumentalists are invited to join the Pancultural Orchestra of the Defense Language Institute.

The orchestra is conducted by Theodore Gargiulo. Rehearsals take place 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays at Munakata Hall, Building 610, Presidio of Monterey.

Anyone interested in performing with this group is invited to call 372-6728 or 647-5110.

Free AIDS testing available

If you think you've risked contracting AIDS from sexual contact or sharing of IV drug needles, a free test is available to see if you have been exposed to the virus. The test is anonymous; you do not have to give your name.

Daytime testing in the Monterey Peninsula area will be offered Mondays and Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Health Department, 1292 Olympia (in parking lot of Broadway and Noche Buena), in Seaside. Appointments are required. For information or appointment call 899-8100.

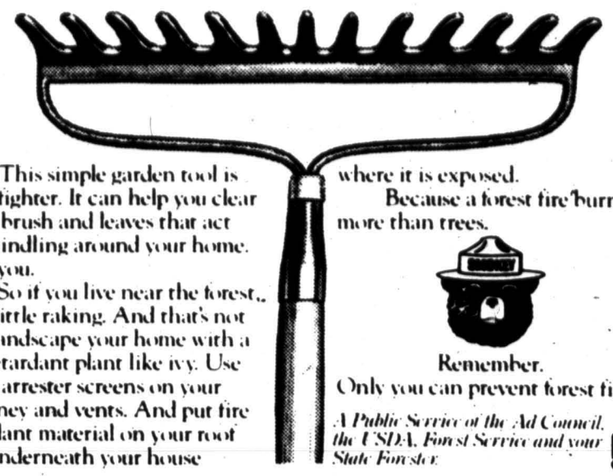
HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.



This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.
